Re: Reference for Joel Amaldas

To Whom It May Concern;

Joel Amaldas is a current volunteer at the Calgary Public Library. Joel has been volunteering with us in our Code Club/Coding Buddies, Make it Messy: Science, and Math Quest programs, as well as one special event since July of 2022. During his time with us Joel has contributed 35 volunteer hours.

The Code Club/Coding Buddies programs helps young children explore coding and digital literacy skills with support from youth volunteers, enabling them to develop an understanding of coding and Internet safety, among other things.

In Make it Messy: Science!, one of the Library's summer camp-style volunteer programs, volunteers help children with staff-led curriculum that develops science, engineering, and experimentation skills.

Math Quest is a weekly, drop-in afterschool program for children in grades 1-6 and their families. Adult and youth volunteers help students to complete numeracy quests throughout the library, sharing their passion and expertise in math, and have fun.

Joel also has been a regular contributor for our Teen Think Tank. This is a virtual volunteer opportunity where teens provide feedback and opinions on Library programs, events and spaces. Joel completed 9 surveys for Teen Think Tank during his time as a volunteer at the Library.

Our programs would not be possible without the commitment of Library volunteers. Staff at the Library commented that "Joel was very engaging with patrons, made sure that children felt welcomed to the games table, and ensured snacks were neat and inviting for everyone to take! He did a wonderful job" and "Joel arrived on time and helped with the set-up and clean-up. He was very collaborative and attentive with patrons. He is a very patient volunteer who enjoys playing with kids—excellent teamwork with the other volunteers." We greatly appreciate Joel's contribution!
Sincerely,
